Hiep dc1.v 2.9 download .rarThe in vitro cellular availability of methyl and ethyl linoleate can be increased by enhancing dietary fat content. This study was undertaken to examine the in vitro cellular availability of methyl and ethyl linoleate. Enterocyte suspensions from male Fisher 344 rats were incubated with [14C]methyl or [14C]ethyl linoleate and the release of intracellular radioactivity into the medium as well as total cellular radioactivity was determined. Results from these in vitro studies showed that the time of cellular availability was approximately 15 min for methyl and ethyl linoleate. In all cases the cellular availability was proportional to the dose
